

PACIFICO'S TEQUILA

100 % BLUE AGAVE

Tequila is a distilled spirit made from a single variety of agave plant called the Webber Blue Agave. It was named after a German scientist invited to Mexico to study the new distillate now called tequila. These agave plants take eight to twelve years to mature and can be harvested only once. The mature agaves are then trimmed to the core and put into pressure cookers or small brick ovens to convert the starches to sugar. The cooked agaves are in oak barrels giving them the caramel color. As tequila is aged, the flavors become smooth and complex as it takes on the flavors of the barrels. Añejos have been aged the longest.
